The Progressive Rally

Frank H. Thomas of Cambridge, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University, Edward W. Boutwell of West Andover, Rev. Nicholas Van der Pyl of Haverhill, and Frank W. Frisbee of North Andover were the speakers at the Progressive rally held in the town hall on Monday evening. A large audience composed of Progressive supporters, ladies and Phillips Academy students, was present. The rally was presided over by Colver J. Stone, Esq.

Mr. Thomas, the first speaker, said that the new party provides the avenue of escape from present conditions which so many men have been seeking for the past few years. He then enumerated and explained the various changes and reforms set forth in the platform, denounced the corruption in politics, due, as he said, to wealth, and declared the need of social and industrial justice.

Professor Hart, the principal speaker of the evening, made a very interesting address, dwelling principally on the work which has already been accomplished by his party, of its future which lies ahead, and of the power and ability of its leader, Theodore Roosevelt. He characterized the ex-president as a second Moses and a second Lincoln, and compared his speech at the Progressive convention with the address of Lincoln at Gettysburg.

He attacked the methods of Senators, Crane, Lodge, Penrose and others in no uncertain terms, attributing to them political dishonesty, and to their machinations in the original convention, the break in the Republican party. He declared that the older party committed suicide at that convention, that it is now dying. Mr. Boutwell made a short address referring briefly to his candidacy, saying that he was not very optimistic over the result of the election, and that he would not be disappointed if the outcome were unfavorable to him. He declared Mr. Roosevelt to be a consistency personified, the inconsistency being laid at the door of those who formerly supported him and now oppose him.

Mr. Van der Pyl made one of his usual thoughtful and impressive addresses, emphasizing especially the need of greater recognition of humanity over property, of larger opportunities for the children of the poor and the children of the emigrant, and the instrumentality which the Progressive Party will have in bringing about these changes.

A few remarks by Mr. Frisbee brought the rally to a close shortly after 9.30 o'clock.

The Republican Rally

A large audience was in attendance at the Republican rally held in the town hall on Saturday evening, and for two hours listened to the interesting speakers of the evening.

John Jacob Rogers of Lowell made the first address. Mr. Rogers had not previously appeared in Andover and was consequently somewhat of a stranger, but his clear, concise statements and his energetic setting forth of the situation in the Fifth Congressional district created a decidedly favorable impression. Mr. Rogers devoted the greater part of his speech to answering the charges made by his opponent, and putting into the possession of the voters facts regarding Mr. O'Sullivan, his business dealings and practices which when once known would at least have no tendency towards increasing votes for the Democratic nominee.

Representative Harry M. Eames, the second speaker, made a short but emphatic as well as effective reply to the charges which have been issued against him by Andover Progressives, and satisfying beyond a doubt the queries concerning his position in the Legislature on certain questions.

Attorney General James M. Swift followed Mr. Eames, beginning with a tribute to the efficient statesmanship of the late vice-president, and then passing to a discussion of the serious crisis which the nation has reached. He made an urgent appeal for true Republican support of all Republican candidates, for a continuance of prosperity under Republican rule, and the avoiding of a repetition of days of panic, hardship and suffering when the Republicans were out of power. He spoke of the excellent service which has been rendered by the four state officers on the state ticket seeking re-election, and commended them to the voters.

Hon. John N. Cole was the last speaker of the evening. He took as his subject "The Town and the Tariff," and in his usual forceful and convincing manner showed the tremendous increase in prosperity of the country under Republican rule during the past years, the increase in New England manufactures under Republican protection; the betterment in the condition of the working people and their ascendancy over men and women in free trade countries across the water in point of wages and life in general. He spoke of the hard times during the last Democratic regime, of their effect in Andover and of the general condition of affairs when the Republicans again came into power at the end of President Cleveland's administration. He then called attention to the rapid betterment of conditions which has come about and of progressive changes which have been introduced, and in closing asked for a hearty endorsement of President Taft's record and his four year's successful service.

Previous to the rally the Andover Brass Band played several selections in front of the town house.

WHAT THE ELECTION RESULTS SIGNIFY

The sound of a pistol shot startles the civilized world. The man who has aimed the revolver, sincerely believes that he has accomplished a great mission when the result of that pistol shot is set forth in the announced death of some great ruler. The assassin honestly believes that through such a death the existing condition of things will be changed, and reforms which are firmly fixed in his own mind and in the minds of those of his associates are bound to come about. A day, a month, a year, many years pass without the assassin and his associates appreciating that nothing was accomplished by the bullet which laid low the life of some great man, other than to solidify those whom they would overthrow. Or more frequently only a few days pass, before the assassin and his associates realize that nothing has been accomplished, save a disturbance which reacts upon those who have been the offenders, and more frequently than otherwise results in pity and contempt being aroused in most people who consider the act.

There are no better words to draw a similar condition in the attempted assassination of the Republican party than the following from the editorial column of the New York Herald of November 6.

More in sorrow than in anger, more with a feeling of sympathy than of condemnation, we would like to ask the leaders of the Progressive party whether they are entirely satisfied with their work which culminated yesterday in the wreck of the Republican party and the defeat of William H. Taft.

Was it worth while? Out of the wreckage of the Republican party the Progressive party cannot be built up. It is not founded on strong underlying principles. Those who have supported it are for the most part men of no deeply grounded views. But the Grand Old Party which honored Mr. Roosevelt lies prostrate in the dust and Democracy has come into control of the Government. Was it worth while?

The history of the world does not show a more satisfactory result achieved under the leadership of a single man, with bitter personal animosity as his incentive, than the result of the election of Tuesday in which Theodore Roosevelt has seen the culmination of his most ardent hopes in the political destruction of President Taft, and the overthrow of leading Republicans who had the audacity to differ with him on public questions. It is not necessary to review the causes which led up to Mr. Roosevelt's attitude and the slight ground which he had for his devotion to the work of wrecking the Republican party. Those are dead issues, save as they have a continual bearing upon the live issue of the party's reconstruction.

Result in the Nation at Large

No man can tell how long the tremendous influence of the wonderful personality of Theodore Roosevelt will be effective in holding together all of the peculiar notions now listed under the Progressive banner. In this movement which has culminated in the defeat of the Republican party, have been reformers and debauchers, crooks and cranks, freaks and fakirs, and associated with these men, who have in the most cases been leaders, there have been joined men of high ideal and of honest purpose, who have believed that many of the social evils so pronounced in the present system of government would find their solution in this movement. Undoubtedly the larger percentage of the men who have done the genuine, enthusiastic work from the best of motives have been of this latter sort, but let none of these men overlook what is already apparent and what will be more apparent as the days go by, that self-seekers for personal political preferment or for personal monetary advantage have been the dominant factors and will continue to be the self-appointed leaders, for the sole purpose of realizing for themselves the emoluments that are sure to follow if success can be attained. And many of them have been of that class who, through other party affiliations, have either failed to secure their desires, or have been repudiated for inefficient and oftentimes corrupt previous public service.

The Massachusetts Result

The influence of Colonel Roosevelt has touched not alone the national problem resulting in the securing of a sprinkling of states in support of his presidential aspirations and the election of a Democratic government, but it has very clearly been the determining influence to secure a very large vote in many of the local contests as well. Here in Massachusetts he has been aided by the money and the clever campaigning of a very strong man for Governor, a man who would undoubtedly fail to make very much of an impression upon the affairs of state if he were elected, because of a lack of previous experience, but who possessed the elements at this particular time to make him very attractive to many voters. Nobody believed that Mr. Bird could possibly secure 100,000 votes, yet in some communities he has shown a strength that indicates a feeling on the part of many people that the issue as raised along the line of a "larger humanity" is an issue that cannot be ignored. He had something to talk about, and his final appeal which showed that he had been dealing with people all his life and treating them squarely, animated by the Golden Rule, was a striking call to the rank and file of the voters.

It made no difference that the Republican party had put upon the Statute book practically every welfare law under which we are living at the present time; it made no difference that in every movement for social uplift, Republican leaders had been in the forefront; here was a man who had actually worked out some of the problems in his own business life, and people liked him and voted accordingly. Over against him were two candidates who were directly attacked along these lines; one of them winning, and the other losing.

The winner was shown in much of the pre-election agitation to be almost the direct opposite of Mr. Bird in his treatment of his employees and in his relation to public and private problems, yet a solidified party, seeing ahead of it the advantages of success, stood loyally behind Governor Foss and gave him a triumphant re-election.

Mr. Walker has never been a strong campaigner. He had no elements of strength to attract the attention of the voters other than upright character, and party service fairly well done. He undoubtedly suffered from his controversies with Governor Foss, and he certainly lost standing with the conservative wing of his party when he fell for the non-sensical demand for a special session to call a primary election preliminary to choosing a United States Senator. As a matter of fact, Mr. Walker's Republicanism has not had the reputation of being stalwart, but has been shaped in such a way as to make him attractive to neither the stalwarts nor the progressives, and his passing from public life at this time is due entirely to a lack of positiveness on public questions which has been so strong a feature of practically all his public service. Matching him with a man who employed labor, and who had treated that labor right, like Mr. Bird, or with a man like Governor Foss who knows the arts of politics and has proven that he is a master of their use, it was a difficult and uphill fight to inspire the voters of the state to support the Republican candidate.

Mr. Luce was unfortunate in keeping before the public the issue of his attitude at the time of the street railway strike in Boston, when the public would have been perfectly willing to forget it. The Democrats chuckled to themselves, over and over again, about the manner in which he saved them from raising that as an issue, while his constant personal advertising of it drove votes of many of the ultra laboring people to Mr. Walsh. He has had the unfortunate experience through both of his campaigns for the high office that he has occupied, of making some serious breaks which have cost the Republican party thousands of votes, his reference last year to the Farr Abaca Company being one of the largest contributions to Republican disaster in that campaign.

Massachusetts Still for Protection

The congressional result cannot fail to bring large satisfaction to those who have worked earnestly to continue Republican success through the discussion of the tariff. It may be that the few Republican congressmen from Massachusetts can have little very direct influence upon tariff legislation in the coming Congress, but certainly it is a gratifying fact that in the tremendous sweep that has been made by the Democrats through the disruption of the Republican party, Massachusetts comes forth with a majority of her congressmen loyal to the Republican faith and supported by Republican voters as never before in any political contest. Handicapped by the tremendous odds of many party members urging Progressive candidacies, they come out with a representation of nine out of the sixteen members, and among these nine some of the strongest Republicans of the state. There is much reason for satisfaction in this result.

In none of these contests has any candidate shone forth more strongly than Col. Winslow of Worcester who, against tremendous odds in a district that was apparently safely Democratic, is elected by a large plurality. His style of campaign has been not unlike that of Mr. Bird. He has been a long-time employer of labor. He has appreciated the humanity side of the political problem, and the result of his election shows that the people of his district understand him and he them, and Massachusetts is to be congratulated upon his success. The success of our own candidate, Mr. Rogers, is likewise very satisfying. He begins a career at Washington under the trying conditions of a membership of the minority party, representing a district that will have difficulty in holding its own in the carrying out of the proposed Democratic platform. He will be tried severely, but his friends believe that he has the qualities to stand the test. It is a strong Republican delegation and it is one of the gratifying results of a memorable political contest.

Because the people of this state believe that protection is the largest factor in the state's prosperity, the election of a Republican House and Senate to choose a Republican United States Senator is a splendid triumph. Those who have been firmly entrenched in their confidence that protection is needed for Massachusetts industries have never felt that any other result would follow than this, and while some of the results have been close, the districts have been saved by narrow margins. Again it is quite proper to express pronounced satisfaction over the fact that Massachusetts is a Republican state on genuine Republican issues.

Time for a Thorough Housecleaning

Beginning with the election of John L. Bates, and his later defeat for Governor, the Republican party in Massachusetts has been riding to its present fall. The "powers that be" never wanted John L. Bates for Governor, and there are many people who believe they never let up on him until he was defeated by Douglas. The "powers that be" have never wanted to see any man of the people succeed in the Republican party of Massachusetts, and the time has come for this truth to be blazoned forth clearly so that all who read may know the truth. Every candidate for office who has had success in the past, and has attempted to secure success in recent years has been obliged to secure the endorsement of certain men who have run the party all these years, or suffer defeat.

The personal side of this issue may be entirely ignored at this time. The writer's attempt to go up, not because of any personal ambition, but because of a demand on the part of thousands of middle class citizens of Massachusetts who felt that one of their number had a right to higher service, is well known by all those who have kept in touch with Massachusetts Republican politics. When those in control through the influence of patronage and money, replied to that ambition that this same great middle class "were welcome to bear the water but must never drink of it," there began what had been threatened at the time of the Bates disaster, a running away of the rank and file of the Republican party into other paths of political activity. Even at this very day, there are some of those among the leaders who have not yet appreciated that the class of citizens who have gone back on the Republican party are the everyday, ordinary middle class men. If this last result isn't sufficient evidence to convince the Republican leadership of the loss of these people, then the party is done for in Massachusetts. We do not believe, however, that it is possible that the men who have been allowed to exploit the Republican party in the interests of that form of aristocratic office-holding which must always stand for the acid test of Beacon Street, is going to be allowed to continue its selfish reign.

During these past years, to maintain the situation as set forth there has always been a political state management sub-erfient to the "powers that be," and as incompetent as it has been sub-erfient. Some of the finest men in the state have been members of the Republican State Committee, and some of them still continue in that capacity, but unless there is a reorganization which puts business sagacity at the head of the state organization, which gives to it a strong-handed, red-blooded treatment of all the people in the Commonwealth who would like to support Republican principles and the Republican party, here again is a handicap which it is going to be difficult to overcome. The biggest demand of the present time in the practical solution of the problem which confronts the Republicans of Massachusetts, is that there shall be a reorganization of the state committee along such democratic lines as shall make of it not a servant of the chosen few who have been believed by some of the people to be "born to rule," but rather make of it a big, all-embracing state organization whose sole purpose is to elevate the Republican party, to promulgate Republican principles, and to hold the state government for the bettered condition of all classes, through the active participation in party management by all classes. Only through such a reorganization can Regular Republicans and Progressives be brought together and the Republican party be returned to its former commanding position in the state.

Exeter Game Tomorrow

Owing undoubtedly to the more engrossing interest in politics and elections during the past few weeks, less has been heard than usual about the annual Andover-Exeter game which will be played in Andover tomorrow afternoon. The followers of both schools, however, are looking forward with no little anticipation to what promises to be an excellent game. Exeter is again confident of victory, while the Andover squad has been working quietly but energetically until it is now in excellent shape. W. W. Nielsen, the fullback, has recovered from his injuries received recently and will be able to play.

The usual large attendance at the game is looked for, and for their better accommodation two new stands have been erected. No automobiles will be allowed on the field this year, but a space will be provided for them on the Salem street campus in front of the gymnasium, where they can be left with safety under the care of a watchman.

The new stand erected is at the Boston end of the field and directly behind the goal posts, and consists of two sections capable of accommodating 720 persons. These seats are now on sale at the Andover Book-store and are going rapidly.

The meeting is accordingly called for next Monday, November 11, but will immediately adjourn to meet November 18 at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held this year in the lower Town Hall and it is hoped will be of general interest. Fuller notice next week.

Abbot Academy Recitals

Arrangements have been perfected for the first two recitals in the series annually given at Abbot Academy by eminent musicians. This will be the thirty-sixth season of these recitals.

The first concert will be given on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 23, by a group of six players from the Boston Symphony orchestra, designated as the Maquarre Quartet. Mr. André Maquarre, the organizer of the sextet, is the first flute in the orchestra and is otherwise eminent as a composer and a conductor.

The other members of the group are Mr. Julius Theodorowicz, first violin, for several years a member of the Kneisel Quartet as well as of the Boston orchestra; Mr. Alexander Riebarsch, second violin; Mr. Josef Keller, violoncello; and Mr. Max O. Kunze, double bass, the first of his section in the orchestra.

The augmentation of the string quartet by a resonant double bass and a delicate wood-wind instrument gives a wider range of color and contrast, though of course the string quartet will ever remain the typical group in the domain of chamber music. Few persons are aware of the beautiful music which has been written by composers of distinction for such a group of players as the Maquarre Quartet. In our acquaintance with music we jump from the string quartet to the full orchestra. The program will be announced next week.

The second concert on Saturday afternoon, January eighteenth, will be a piano recital by Mr. George Copeland, the noted interpreter of the music of Debussy and the modern French school. Mr. Copeland played at these recitals two years ago to the great delight of those who heard him. In addition to compositions by Debussy he will play some of Mozart's music which he interprets with great charm and beauty.

Attention is called to the change of the afternoon of the concert from Thursday to Saturday. This change has been made with the hope of making the concert even more largely available than they have ever been. The third recital will be a vocal recital.

Tickets for the series will be on sale at the Andover Bookstore and at Abbot Academy, beginning next Wednesday. As usual the price for the series will be two dollars.

Tuesday Club Entertained

The annual reception and tea of the Tuesday club was held on Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at the home of Mrs. Frank H. Messer, on Locke street.

From three to five o'clock the hostess and the officers of the club, Mrs. Horace Hale Smith, president, Mrs. Frank H. Hardy, vice-president, Mrs. George E. Hussey, secretary, and Mrs. Anna Paddock, treasurer, received the members and their guests, who to the number of over 100 enjoyed Mrs. Messer's hospitality.

Well arranged decorations added to the pleasure of the occasion, a profusion of red roses and violets being used, together with asparagus fern. The table in the dining-room presented a very attractive appearance with its pretty candles and other decorations. A dainty tea was served. Mrs. John N. Cole and Mrs. George M. R. Holmes pouring, assisted by Mrs. Norman Reed and Miss Alice S. Coutts.

RECORD BREAKING VOTE

Largest Outpouring of Voters in History of Andover. Which Goes for President Taft and Re-elects Eames.

Andover broke all past records at the national election on Tuesday by polling the largest vote in her history, a total in both precincts of 1261 out of a registration of 1472. Of this number 1079 votes were cast in Precinct 1 and 182 in Precinct 2.

The fact that it was the presidential year and that the local contests were of more than ordinary interest was responsible for the large number of voters who turned out.

The election from the local viewpoint was rather a surprise, especially the contest for representative in which Mr. Eames was successful, in that Mr. Boutwell, the Progressive candidate, polled so large a vote. The Democratic vote also more nearly equalled that of the two other parties owing to the break in the Republican vote, by reason also of that break, Mr. Eames and Mr. Boutwell ran pretty closely, the contest ending with a plurality for the former of only fifty-seven votes.

Mr. Rogers had the support in his Congressional fight which he deserved, the voters giving him a plurality over Mr. O'Sullivan of 236. In the senatorial contest Mr. Tetter led in Andover with 168 votes, but lost in the district to Senator Halley.

The polls in both precincts opened at six o'clock and the voting was heavy all through the morning. At noon about 700 had been polled and in the neighborhood of 200 more were added during the hour from twelve to one. The polls were closed at 4:30, but owing to the length and complexity of the ballot the returns were not known until half-past nine.

Andover voted for both proposed amendments to the constitution, voted to adopt the pensioning act, and declared in favor of the Essex county agricultural school. The vote in detail follows:

AMONG THE CHURCHES, CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

The Grange Sale

The sale and supper conducted by the Woman's club of the Grange in A. O. C. W. hall on Friday evening proved to be very successful, notwithstanding the very stormy weather which prevailed. There was a good attendance and everyone did justice to the sandwiches, salads, frankfurts, rolls, cake, doughnuts, and pies, etc., which were served a la Dutch.

The fancy work and aprons which were on sale were very attractive and the tables when they were displayed were well patronized.

The committee of arrangements consisted of: President, Mrs. J. Warren Moor; vice-president, Mrs. E. Burke Thornton; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Bailey. The Williams orchestra furnished the music.

Those in charge of the different tables were as follows:

Fancy table—Mrs. Louis Dane, Mrs. James McGovern.

Domestic apron table—Mrs. Ira Hill, Mrs. Fred Hill, Mrs. Andrew Thompson.

Fancy apron table—Mrs. E. W. Burr, Mrs. Charles Emerson, Miss Charlotte Hill.

Cake table—Mrs. Charles Jameson, Mrs. Charles Newton, Mrs. Harry Playdon.

Doughnuts and pies—Mrs. John Buchanan, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Louis Edwards.

Salads—Mrs. S. H. Bailey, Mrs. Asa Gould, Mrs. Milo Gould, Mrs. E. W. Boutwell.

Candy table—Miss Madeline Hewes, Miss Luella Phelps, Miss Abbie McGovern, Miss Bertha Youngston.

Sandwiches—Mrs. George Ward, Mrs. Hubert Mayo.

Frankfurt—E. Burke Thornton, William Corliss, Mrs. George Carter.

Coffee—S. H. Bailey, F. M. Foster.

Ice cream—Asa Gould, Fred A. Swanton.

Check-room—James Grosvenor.

The Rebekah Supper

Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge has always had a high reputation regarding its public suppers, and that reputation was added to in no small degree by the Harvest Supper given on Monday evening in Pilgrim hall.

The large number of persons who were present and enjoyed the excellent supper of salads, baked beans, brown bread, rolls, coffee, pies, cake, fruit, cider, etc., were unanimous in declaring it to be very enjoyable.

The decorations, which were very appropriate to Halloween, were admirably arranged under the direction of the Nollie Grand, Miss Mae E. Morrill. Pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns adorned all the tables and many Halloween favors were in evidence. Among the most unique and attractive of the latter was a salad bowl made by hollowing out a red cabbage and decorating the outside with vines and bright red cherries. The inside, containing a delicious salad, was equally attractive, although from a different viewpoint.

At a side table, sweet cider was served by a little sunbonneted country girl, Hazel Claffin. The corner where the table stood was very suggestive of the harvest, with its gold and orange decorations.

At the conclusion of the supper the hall was cleared for dancing, for which music was furnished by Mrs. Thornton of Lawrence.

Those in charge of the evening were as follows:

Entertainment committee—M. E. Morrill, N. G. chairman; Mrs. Sara Leonard, Mrs. William Faulkner, Mrs. Edwin Eastman, Mrs. Carrie Buchanan, Mrs. Susie Mears, Mrs. Walter Buxton, Edwin Eastman, Wm. Brown, Rebecca McCullum.

Table waiters—Anna Holt, Bertha Higgins, Esther Claffin, Mrs. Emily Frye, Charlotte Hill, Lillian Holt, Emma Holt.

Serving room—Mrs. Agnes Claffin, Mrs. Millie Hammond, Miss Agnes Kydd, S. H. Bailey.

The Royals' Dance

The Royals had a very enjoyable and largely attended dancing party in the town hall on Friday evening. Unaffected by the storm without, the large number of couples present danced until a late hour to music furnished by the Columbian orchestra. The committee in charge was:

Floor director, Ralph Bailey; assistant floor director, Charles Bowman; aids, E. O'Connell, Fred Kenner, Joseph Carroll, James Kyle, Frank McCarthy, Frank Markey, Harold Lund, Nelson Murre, Ray Cole, P. Keefe, and Homer Judge.

Among those present were: Misses Jennie McNally, Katherine McNally, Sadie Hitchens, Grace Murphy, Bessie Cheyne, Helen Curtin, Ethel Curtin, Annie Byrnes, May Burnes, Catherine McShane, Elizabeth Stewart, Esther Butterfield, Ida Byrnes, Katherine Sweeney, Mary Maroney, Mary Welch, Eva Hulme, Isabella Kilackey, Esther Claffin, Gertrude Brady, Bertha Judge, Bessie Hayes, Lucy Lassons, Mary McKenzie, Elizabeth Gordon, Ella Harlow, May Scudlon, Helen McCulley.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Consideration

"I speak as to wise men, judge ye what I say," were wise and judicious words written by Paul, the great letter writer, long ago. Today when we read about Mr. Wilson and Mr. Roosevelt almost giving each other credit for being unwise we, the common people, should take St. Paul's advice and have wisdom enough to "hold fast to that which is good."

Joshua, an old warrior, long before Paul learned the trade of a tent-maker, said to the Jews, "choose ye this day whom ye shall serve." This applies to the voters of this great country in this year of grace 1912, only we are not to choose whom we shall serve, but really to choose who shall serve us.

There is too much nonsense spoken and printed today about what the president will do or not do, as if we were living in France before the revolution when the king, as the state was spoken of, said, "I am the state." We are apt to indulge in the foolish notion that the president is the republic. Let us never forget that the electors are the state. It is strange to note that the British constitution with a limited monarchy gives the people more power to say what laws are to be enacted than we have in this country. Mr. Bryce, now British ambassador at Washington, brings out clearly in his great book, "The American Constitution," the fact that the president, as our laws now stand, has more power than King George. The House of Commons being elected by the people, no one appointed by the king so far as the cabinet is concerned, can take office until the people approve of the king's selection. Since Mr. Bryce's book was published, the arbitrary powers of the House of Lords have been changed so that really the people who elect the members of the Commons rule the country. In other words, the king reigns but does not rule. To put it mildly, an Englishman just laughs at our president appointing a postmaster. The civil service in England looks after many things that in this country are done by the president. That great president, Grover Cleveland, tried to reform our civil service system and did to some extent civilize it. After consideration we may take all the postoffice appointments out of the political jumble. It would almost make a British subject become a lunatic to see a postmaster changed because a Tory minister got into power, or vice versa. There is an awful splurge of a letter in the Boston Journal of the 13th of this month. Mr. Munsey fills the whole first page of the paper telling us all to vote for Roosevelt and be sure and not vote for Wilson, and says that Mr. Taft cannot be elected. In this rushing letter we are told about what Mr. Roosevelt did when he was president; thirty-three of what Mr. Munsey calls Mr. Roosevelt's achievements are mentioned, and then nine policies urged by Mr. Roosevelt, which he will force an unwilling Congress to put on the statute book as he did with the thirty-three measures when he was president. Furthermore, Mr. Roosevelt was so busy forcing an unwilling Congress to do as he wished that he had no time to reform the tariff. He is, I think, a well-meaning man, but all the wisdom of the ages is not concentrated in him. The weakest part of this big-type, Munsey letter is when Mr. Munsey says that the Republican party with their high tariff, have made this country prosperous. This letter is addressed to Mr. business Man, imploring him to vote the Progressive ticket and prevent the Democrats getting into power as they would ruin the country by their free trade nonsense. Surely if the business of the country is safe with Mr. Taft and his crew, why change to Mr. Roosevelt and his industrial revolution of impracticable, unworkable schemes. This minimum wage idea is just, to me, sheer buncomb. Suppose it to be put in force all over these states; by so doing, the price of every kind of merchandise is raised, or maximum wages now paid must be reduced, that is, if the article produced and the goods sold are to be put on the market as they are now. Again, the nonsense, as I think it, in the Progressive program about children being employed in our factories, I don't at all agree with. If they say that they wish a law for the whole country similar to the just and humane laws we have as to the employment of young persons over fourteen years of age, why not say so. I cannot see anything wrong with our Massachusetts nine hours a day and fourteen years of age code.

We are not all Carnegies; we cannot afford to send all our boys and girls to colleges to be paupers till they are over twenty-one years of age. The regular habits learned while working in a factory make men and women that are the backbone of the nation.

How The Case Was Settled

Here is a note from a lawyer telling how litigation was averted:

"A case, in which I represented one of the parties as attorney, was pending in the Federal Court here in Boston. The plaintiff was in New Jersey, the defendant in Western Massachusetts. There was a possibility of a settlement out of court, and with this in view the plaintiff called me up on the long-distance telephone. I got into communication with the defendant, and the case was adjusted out of court to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. To have tried the case would have cost, including attorneys' fees, probably a thousand dollars. The telephone charges were less than ten dollars, and modestly forbids me to state the amount of the attorney's compensation."

Isaiah v. 7-16—Nov. 10.

"Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that tarry late into the night, till wine inflame."—Vs. 11.

TODAY'S lesson had its primary force in connection with the affairs of natural Israel in the days of the Prophet. But when we remember that Natural Israel types Christendom, we find a value to this lesson very pertinent to our time. "And He looked for judgment [justice], but behold, oppression; for righteousness and, behold, a cry of distress." As to the national cry and the reason for it, see verse 8, which reads: "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth!" Here we perceive that a spirit of selfishness prevailed in Isaiah's day, as it does today; as then property was disposed to accumulate in the hands of the more successful, so it is today. As then land-lordism took possession of vast areas, neglectful of the fact that "the earth hath the Lord given unto the children of men," and not merely to a few, so it is today.

A Time of Trouble.

Divine disapproval of human hard-heartedness, selfishness and neglect of poorer brethren, and forgetfulness of the fact that we are all children of one blood, amenable to the laws of the same Creator, brought upon the Israelites Divine judgments. We believe that the Scriptures with "Corporations have equal clearness tell of a great 'time of trouble' now impending over the world, especially over Christendom—a time particularly mentioned by St. James, saying, "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for the misery that shall come upon you."

This trouble is mentioned in today's study, verse 9: "The Lord of Hosts said in my hearing, Of a truth many houses shall be desolate, even great and fair, without inhabitant." If we rightly appreciate what the Scriptures foresaw respecting times not far ahead of us, we will see that many of the great and rich will be in a sad plight in their countryside homes, as will be some of the poorer in the congested cities, for the time of trouble, it is declared, will be upon all.

Music, Revelry, Intoxication.

The text given us for today's lesson comes next in our study. In the days of Isaiah's prophecy many of the rich indulged in intoxicating liquors, music, revelry, etc., to their own injury as well as to the neglect of their responsibilities to God. They asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" even as Cain asked this question. By their accumulated wealth they had more than heart could wish, while others were needy.

And how about today, is it the same? We answer, Yes, and no. With many it is the same exactly, but with a considerable number of the wealthy of our day it is very different, we are glad to say. Continually we have evidences that some of the wealthy consider their possessions as a trust from the Almighty, to be used in His service, and for the sake of humanity. But alas, there are comparatively few. The majority of the rich, like the majority of the poor, are selfish to the core.

When the selfish-rich and the selfish poor shall join issue in a great struggle, as the Bible clearly declares they will do, then the world will see the time of trouble prophesied—"such as never was since there was a nation"—a time of trouble which Jesus declares will never be again, because following that great trouble, upon the ashes of the present civilization, Messiah will establish the Kingdom of God, for the blessing of all the families of the earth—the rich, the poor.

Thus Socialism, according to the Bible, will be the ultimate condition of the earth. Socialists, not aware of this teaching of God's Word, or if aware of it doubting it, propose to take over in the interest of all mankind the great blessings which are now in the hands of the comparatively few. To

"Am I my brother's keeper?" appears dangerous, impractical. To us it appears as the Scriptures indicate, that failing to accomplish their benevolent designs, Socialists will become bitter anarchists, and plunge themselves and the whole world into the most awful trouble ever known. We need the conversion of the world to a heart-harmony with God and the principles of righteousness.

Will this ever come? Ah, yes! The mouth of the Lord hath spoken it! But it cannot come through any power of ours. "Wait ye upon Me, saith the Lord, until that Day!" "For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve Him with one consent." In His own time, following the great time of trouble, God will humble the world. Meantime the elect saints will be glorified, and with Messiah, constitute the long-promised Kingdom of God for the blessing of humankind.

TREMONT

The new play, "The Rainbow," was presented for the first time in Boston at the Tremont theatre on Monday night. The story, which deals with the separation and reconciliation of a husband and wife, is treated in a new and unusual way.

HOLLIS STREET

Leo Dietrichstein and his supporting company are on a two weeks' engagement at the Hollis Street theatre, in "The Concert." The piece is noteworthy not only for its bright comedy and clever satire, but for the moral that it teaches.

CASTLE SQUARE

"The Commuters," with its continuous fun and merriment is being given at Castle Square this week by the regular stock company.

ST. JAMES

SHUBERT

There will be but one week more of Gertrude Hoffman in "Broadway to Paris" at the Shubert theatre. It is announced that there can positively be no further extension of the Boston engagement.

PLYMOUTH

The fourth week of the engagement of Mr. George Arliss in "Disraeli," at the Plymouth theatre, finds the piece increasing in popularity.

COLONIAL

"The Quaker Girl" is on the final week of her engagement at the Colonial theatre.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

The announcement that "The Merry Widow," the queen of the Viennese operettas, will be offered by Mr. Henry W. Savage at the Majestic Boston, for a limited engagement of two weeks, beginning Monday night, puts a lot of musical stiffening into one's spine.

Mr. Savage promises a complete, new and magnificent production for this season's version of the work. He has always kept faith with his public, it therefore goes without saying that he will not permit this standard of all the light opera standards to diminish in its glorious perfections.

The names in the cast are familiar. It is practically the same company that was seen here last, and they were many of the originals. Mabel Wilber will sing the fascinating role of Sonia, the merriest of all widows, Charles Meakins, a Hamiltonia by the way, will be the Prince Danilo. Oscar Eganman is Baron Popoff.

Then again Mr. Savage offers the "Merry Widow" orchestra. This organization is composed of the best soloists of the Savage grand opera orchestra, is a complete organization in itself, and plays the entire score without the aid of a written note. Mr. Alfred Moulton is the conductor.

SPIRITISM SAID TO BE DEMONISM.

A most interesting little brochure has recently come off the press setting forth with Bible proofs that the communications received by and through Spiritist Mediums is of Demon origin. The writer traces his subject through the Scriptures from the time when certain of the holy angels became disobedient. He proves from the Scriptures that those fallen spirits personate the human dead, with whose past history, spirits, though invisible, are thoroughly acquainted. He shows that they also frequently personate the Creator and the Redeemer, commanding their deceived ones to pray, do penance, etc. This, however, is merely to lead them on and to bring them more thoroughly under demonic control. Sometimes by breaking down the natural barrier, the human will, they possess their victim, and rule him more or less to his ruin—frequently sending such to the mad-house. Numerous illustrations, Scriptural and otherwise, are given. The price of the little book is but five cents; it should be in the hands of all interested in Spiritism or who have friends interested therein. Enclose stamps to the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Fire Prevention Day

The proclamation of the Governor setting aside Saturday, November 9,
as Fire Prevention Day, that date being the fortieth anniversary of the great Boston fire of 1872, is of interest to Andover people, inasmuch as the observance is to the end that riscuous destruction of property and loss of life may be lessened.

The Governor's message reads in part as follows:

"I urge that on Fire Prevention
Day all property owners give particular heed to the inspection of their buildings and grounds. Defective chimneys and flues should be removed, inflammable rubbish should be disposed of, and all needless fire risks removed.

"School authorities should redouble their efforts against the dangers of fire. Owners of stores, factories and mills should cause a special examination to be made of their premises.

"The newspapers throughout the State can render on that day effective public service by calling the attention of their readers emphatically to the duty of protecting life and property.

"The annual property loss by fire in the United States is estimated to be over $200,000,000; and over $8,000,- 000 in this Commonwealth.

"Our fire losses per capita are stated to be eight times as great as the average in European countries, and fourteen times as great as the per capita fire loss in Germany.
Moreover, our annual per capita loss is increasing in a very rapid ratio.
"During the past few days serious loss has been occasioned by many forest fires, due in large part to the defective spark arresters and faulty fire construction on locomotives, and more effective legislation is needed to control these risks."

A History of the Game Birds, Wild Fowl and Shore Birds of Massachusetts

Under the above title, the State Board of Agriculture has just issued a bird book by Edward Howe For-bush, State Ornithologist.

It is a finely bound, elegantly printed and fully illustrated volume of over six hundred pages of such a character that it stands apart from all other bird books ever published in this country. It is unique in that it gives a narrative of the former abundance of the birds of Eastern North America that are hunted for food or sport, a history of their decrease and the causes thereof, and points clearly to the remedy. No volume has ever treated this subject
so fully as a question of economics.

The introduction shows how the United States was formerly the greatest game bird country in the world, and describes graphically the abundant of these birds in early times.

In Part I practically all the game birds, wild fowl and shore birds of the United States are described in "language understandable of the people," and the common names by which gunners know each bird are printed as well as the scientific names.
A history is given of the rise and fall of each species, together with its habits, migration, notes and something of its food.

Part II sets forth the history of the birds hunted for food or sport that have disappeared from this region or become extinct since the settlement of the country. Here we learn how birds have been exterminated.

Part III discusses the utility of game birds, the causes of their depletion and the means of protecting them and increasing their numbers.

Experience has shown that the entire first edition of a book by this author would be exhausted in a few days if free distribution were allowed.
For this reason the Legislature has limited the free copies to public libraries in Massachusetts towns, certain schools in towns which have no libraries, public state and territorial libraries and certain state officials.
Under the law, the book may be sold to the public by the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, at the State House, Boston, at not less than the cost of printing, binding and plates. The demand for the first edition is so great that other editions have been provided for by legislative act.

The decrease of the once abundant game of America has attracted wide attention throughout the civilized world and this book coming as it does, when Americans are beginning the attempt to conserve game, is a timely contribution to an interesting and important subject. It appeals to sportsmen, gunners, nature lovers,
farmers and everyone who is interested in the outdoor world.

The work is a companion book to "Useful Birds and Their Protection," a large, cloth-bound volume, which has already run through three editions. These books are sold at cost by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, in order to disseminate this valuable information as widely as possible. The price of each book is one dollar and the purchaser must pay transportation charges. The postage on "Useful Birds and Their Protection" is thirty-six cents, on
"Game Birds, Wild Fowl and Shore Birds," it is forty cents. Upon instructions to that effect, these books will be sent by express, collect. Letters should be addressed to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary Massachusetts
State Board of Agriculture, 136 State House, Boston, Mass., and checks or money orders should be made payable to Mr. Ellsworth.

Wanted to Surprise the Foreigners

A member of the London County Council was regretting the lack of artense displayed by his fellows when they placed an open space at the disposal of the people. He pleaded elo-quently for fountains, gold fish in ornamental basins, lions and unicorns in statues, and emerald-green garden-seats.

"Why," said he, in a splendid per-oration, "we want something homely and country-like—a little arbor here and there. If a foreigner came to this country and asked to see one, we've never an arbor worth showing to show him."

Then up and spoke another member who, prior to attaining the height of his civic ambitions, had been a petty officer in the navy.

"Oh, we haven't, haven't we? And not about Portsmouth 'Arbor?'"
